

Honouring the Legacy of Chef Hans Schings

Chef Hans Schings was a revered figure in the Australian culinary community, known for his dedication to education and mentorship. As a commercial cookery teacher and Head Teacher at TAFE, he trained hundreds of apprentices, imparting his passion for the culinary arts to the next generation. His commitment extended to his role as the chief assessor for Le Cordon Bleu in Sydney, where he served for nearly a decade.

In recognition of his contributions, the 'Hans Schings Memorial Award' was established to honour students who exemplify excellence during their industry placements. This award reflects Hans's enduring impact on culinary education and his dedication to nurturing emerging talent.

Chef Schings's legacy continues to inspire both peers and aspiring chefs, underscoring the importance of passion, education, and mentorship in the culinary profession.
